EPITHELIOMA!

For seven years I suffered with a caneer on my face. Eight months ago a friend recommended the use of Swift's Specific and I determined to make an effort to procure it. In this I was successful, and began its use. The infinence of the medicine at first was to sonewhat aggravate the sore but soon the inflammation was allayed, and I began to improve after the first few bottles. My general health has greatly improved. I am stronger, and able to do any kind of work. The cancer on my face began to decrease and the ulcer to heal, until there is not a vestige of it left—only a little scar marks the place.

Atlanta, Ga., August II, 1885.

I have had a cancer on my face for some years, extending from one check bone across the nose to the other. It has given me a great deal of pain, at times burning and itching to such an extent that it was almost unbearable. I commenced using swilt supecific in May, 1835, and have used eight bottles. It has given the greatest relief by removing the inflammation and restoring my general health.

Mrs. James Brown Potter's Success as an Amateur.

GERMAN GPERA TRIUMPHANT.

The Pox Tree and Its Occupants—What It Costs Society to Be Exclusive.

come and popular ladies in New York so city, there is none more beautiful, more ciety, there is none more beautiful, more attractive, or more often sought after than Mis. James Brown Potter, Mrs. Potter is probably the best known by name of New York society women in the country. The metropolitan correspondents of the leading journals of this country and abroad make frequent mention of her in their letters and always chronicle her movements with the greatest particularity. Mrs. Potter was formerly Miss Cora Urquhart of New Orleans, and a great belle in that city before she came to New York to hold a similar position here as Mrs. James Brown Potter. She is a very beautifull woman, clever and a delightful conversationalist.

The above picture of her is an exceedingly good likeness, but in all outline drawings, it is difficult to produce good results as shading cannot be introduced. Mrs. Potter numbers among her personal and intimate friends, ladies of such distinguished social prominence as Mrs. William Astor, her daughter, Mrs. J. Coleman Drayton, Mrs. Ogden Goelet, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt and Mrs. Paran Stevens. She is a frequent guest at their houses, is invited every night to the opera, attends all the fashionable entertainments of the winter, and, in fact, is to be seen everywhere. Mrs. Potter is a great patron of the drama and has already schleved great fame on the smatcur stage. She has been acting since 1881. Her name on the programmes of amateur performances is a sufficient card to draw large audiences. She never appears in public except in aid of some worthy charity, and last winter she appeared for the benefit of the Bartholdi status which net draw large audiences. She never appears in public except in aid of some worthy charity, and last winter she appeared for the benefit of the Bartholdi statue, which netted a large amount for the World fund.

Mrs. Potter has appeared as Hortenss in "A Wonderful Woman;" as Mrs. Frunk Preston in "Cape Mail;" in "For Her Chidi's Sake;" as Poicska in "The Russian Honeymoon;" as Marguerite in "The Romance of a Poor Young Man;" as Helen Matrernein "The Old Love and the New;" as Florence Marigodd in "My Unele's Will;" as Emcline in "False Colors," and also in "Aux Avant Postes." Mrs. Potter speaks French fluently and with an almost unity except, and consequently is very successful in the latter kind of plays. She is a very conscientious actress, studies her parts well, and above all, has a strong dramatic instinct. On a recent occasion Mr. David Belasco, the well-known playwright and stage manager, wrote to her after one of her performances as follows: "My dear Mrs. Potter: You did so grandly the other evening, I should have been proud to have been your bell-boy. Sincerely, David Belasco," Mme. Mojeska wrote this to her: "'You have deserved high commendation, true applause and love."—As You Like It. 'I would applaud again.'—Macbeth." Mrs. Potter is the leading amateur actress of this city, and her acting has a professional standing. She has received Macbeth." Mrs. Potter is the leading amateur actress of this city, and her acting has a professional standing. She has received many offers from local managers to appear upon the professional stage, but has declined them all. I believe she is to appear this winter in a new role, that of Pruline in 'The Lady of Lyons.' There is no denying that Mrs. Potter will make a beautiful

Pauline, and act it with grace and dramatic force with which she is abundantly sup-

Grand opera in this city is attracting widespread attention and the performances of the German company of singers at the Metropolitan Opera-House exceed in excel-lance any similar performances in German Metropolitan Opera-House exceed in excellence any similar performances in German or Italian that have been given in this city.
The productions which have taken place
thus far this season have shown a liberality on the part of the management that is praiseworthy, and which denotes that Mr.
Edmund C. Stanton, the director of the opera-house, intends to give opera in New York with a degree of excellence in the singers and stage pictures that has never been excelled in any part of the world. It is the intention of the management to favor some of the principal cities of the United States with these superb productions, and Philadelphia will be the first city the company will visit. Fraulein Lehmann, one of the principal sopranes, made her debut as States with these superb productions, and Philadelphia will be the first city the company will visit. Fraulein Lehmann, one of the principal sopranes, made her debut as Carmen. She is a woman of handsome presence, a dramatic actress, and a singer with superior vocal accomplishments. Her voice is remarkably clear, rich and resonant in tones, and she sings with an ease and grace that is most effective and charming to distent to. She is altogether a fine artists. Herr Alvari made his debut as Don José in the same opera, and is a tenor of much merit. "Le Prophete" served last Friday to introduce to the public Herr Silva in the principal part. He is by all odds that best tenor of the company. His voice is one of much sweetness and is of a baritone tenor quality. His execution is smooth and fluent, and he manages his voice will definess and without forcing it. "Die Walkure" was sing on Monday, and is an opera that is fortunate in being acceptable to both the most advanced of the so-called musicians of the future and to the average man and woman of to-day. It was given with the same perfection that distinguished the production of bils work hast season. Fraulein Lehman as Brunhilde sang and acted magnificently. She entered into the spirit of the composer with such evident sympathy and intelligence that to many it was an entirely new realization of the part. Herr Stritt as Sigmand but confirmed the favorable impression he has already made. The greatest operatic achievement in this country was that made on Wednesday evening when Goldmark's "Queen of Sheba" had its first hearing in the United States. Of this work I will have more to say next week and will fillustrate two of its most effective scenes. It offers many grand opportunities for the display of this best art of the scene painter, costumer and stage manager, Theatrically, the production is a grand spectacle and nothing more boattiful or effective has before been seem on any stage in New York. The cast included Herr Rothinson, Frau Kramer Will, Fraulein Lehmann, Fr is the joint work of Henry A. Jones and Wilson Barrett. The former wrote the 'Silver King' and the latter has contributed to the stage and is an actor of much merit. The scenery is admirably painted and all the opportunities that the play offers for the display of skill and effective painting of the scenic artist have been fully taken advantage of by Mr. Gosteher. The play is very strongly cast. Mr. John Gilbert and Mme. Ponisi appear in effective pairts. Mr. Kyrle Bellew is seen to better advantage in this play than in any be has thus far appeared in. Miss Annie Robe made a very strong success in the dual role of the wife and the waif and has strengthened her position as the leading actress of Wallack's Thestre. Mr. Elton afforded much amusement as Ben Chibbles.

The Kiraffy Brothers' new spectacular plees, "The Rateatcher of Hamelin," did not achieve anything like a great success on the first night of its production. In fact, it was a disappointment. It dragged heavily on Monday night, and before it can be made a "go," of which there is some possibility, it must undergo very thorough cutting. The piece has a coherent story and some music, which is neither brilliant nor of unusual excellence. In fact, it is reminiscent in character. The scene where the Rateatcher charms the rodents by playing on his pipe and attracts them to the water's edge, when they fall into the stream and are drowned, was but partially effective. Agreat deal had been said in advance of the production about the wonderful character of this scene; in fact, too much, for it did not come up to expectations, although it is quite good in its way. Mile, De La Brugere, the new danseuse, has much force but little grace. Mr. Hubert Wilke sang the principal part, that of the Rateather. His voice is rich in tone and he sings beautifully. The "Rateatcher of Hamilin" may become a success, but it is hardly up to the former spectacular plays produced by the Kiralfys. and some music, which is neither brilliant

"The Grip," Edward Harrigan's latest character play, was produced at Harrigan's New Park Theatre on Monday night. The fun, as in all of Mr. Harrigan's comedies, is decidedly of the horseplay order, but it is decidedly of the horsepiay order, but it is real fun for all that and is always sure of uproarlous approval. Dave Braham has written four or live new songs for the play. All of them are good, and two, "Oh, Dat Low Bridge!" and "Grogan the Masher," are sure to become popular. The story of the play is interesting, the situations of fective and the singing and staging all that could be desired. "The Grip" has got the public fast and is likely to hold on for some time to come.

THE DEATH OF A POPULAR DE LUSION.

What Dr. J. Clark Slay, M. D., Says, in the Philadelphia Medical and Surgical Reporter, of Iron.

Long before medicine was entitled to rank as a science fron in some form was given to the sick. In the first records simgiven to the sick. In the first records simple metallic iron in a state of minute division was given. Whether the patient died or recovered, a certain virtue was attributed to its use and custom regarded it as one of the proper things to take. With the advance in knowledge concerning the human body it was found that the manner in which the blood received its nourishment made it impossible for iron, in that form at lenst, to ever reach the blood. This fact, however, did not deter many from still seeking to know whether out of iron could not be obtained some good and apparent result.

seeking to know whether out of fron could not be obtained some good and apparent result.

The opinion of a very large number of the members of the medical profession on this subject may be easily deduced by the following quotations from an article on 'Iron as a Medicine,' by J. Clark Slay, M. D., which appeared in the Medical and Surgical Reporter March 21, 1885:

"Some physicians have continued to give, while others have returned to giving, simply metallic fron in a state of minute division, as being preferable to any of its preparations; but these are very few in point of numbers, for they soon reach the conclusion that fron plays but little or no part in the healing art, and it is discarded entirely from their lists." The best that this frank author can say of other forms is that they are "very slightly astringent." The argument is advanced that iron, like many other medicinal agents, must be taken in combination with some other agent to develop its qualities. "Reasoning from the facts we have presented, why combine with any form of iron, or any other preparation, when by the use of alcohol, in the form of a whiskey, there can be most certainly induced an appetite for and an ability to digest regular articles of diet known to contain all the elements necessary for the sustemance or repair of the body in health and disease? Of course it is essential that the whiskey should be absolutely pure (free from fusel oil) and made from mait. Not only has iron failed to show the advantages once claimed, but startling evidence has been given which proves that in chronic lung affections, it is apt to produce congestive trouble. With many it produces constipation in its worst form, causing headache and distressing nervous effects, which make the use of iron impossible in any form.

Error is slow to die, and the popular idea must be met and therefore it is that the must be met and therefore it is that the stile in any form.

Error is slow to die, and the popular idea must be met, and therefore it is that the motto, "Becf, Wine and Iron," graces the by-paths and lighways of human travel.

The merit claimed for some of these articles rests on the unquestionable fact that the iron contained is so wonderfully combined that no chemical test will show its the fron contained is so wonderfully com-bined that no chemical test will show its presence. The fact being that absolutely no iron whatever exists in these prepara-tions, the manufacturers preferring to reat their own chances for profit on an article consisting but too often of a cheap and de-leterious whiskey, marked with the flavor of some extract, which may induce an ab-normal appetite, giving, however, nothing to aid digestion, and eventually leaving the disabled system weaker than at the begin-ning. ning.
